

I am currently an interventional pain management fellow at MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, Texas. I finished my residency training in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at the University of Texas San Antonio. I am well trained in both multidisciplinary team approach to pain management and interventional procedures. I am fluent in Spanish, and have had ample opportunities to treat Spanish speaking patients. My expected graduation date is June of 2012. I am excited about the possibility of returning home to Florida to practice pain management.
